

---

Nikolay Nenovsky, Tsvetelina Marinova***

TEN YEARS OF MONETARY VARIETY IN RUSSIA (1917–1927): HISTORICAL FACTS AND THEORETICAL INTERPRETATIONS
(Summary)

The article aims to make a historical reconstruction of the variety of monetary practices in early Soviet Russia. It covers the period that began with the rise to power of the Bolsheviks in late 1917, continued through the years of civil war and war communism, and ended with the end of the New Economic Policy (NEP) in 1927. An attempt has been made to theoretically systematize the different forms of monetary pluralism, which show the complexity of the monetary institution.

Keywords: Russian monetary history, monetary pluralism, Bolshevik rule, Russian civil war, war communism, new economic policy.

---

* Prof. Nikolay Nenovsky, DSc; University of Picardie Jules Verne, Amiens, France, Associate Researcher; High School of Economics, Moscow and University of National and World Economy, Sofia; ORCID ID 0000-0002-9544-9024; e-mail: nenovsky@gmail.com

Assoc. Prof. Tsvetelina Marinova, PhD; New Bulgarian University, Associate Researcher; University of Picardie Jules Verne, Amiens, France; ORCID ID 0000-0002-2455-1515; e-mail: tsvetelina.marinova@gmail.com